

PRISONER OF THE MARTIANS

By IWAN KERNYCKY (Translated by M. Milanowych)

Borys opened his eyes— saved were shattered... "Ready?" — asked "Red Light." "Ready," — whispered Borys. One of the Martians touched the outer wall with his hook and suddenly the wall seemed to fade, and it became as transparent as a sheer silken curtain. All four, without the faintest rustle, went through the wall and found themselves in the street. It was a still, spring night. The sky was studded with stars. The town slept a deep sleep. The clock in the church steeple struck midnight. "Where are you taking me?" Borys timidly asked. "There!" — "Red Light" pointed with his hook-arm. Borys looked and on a hill outside town he saw a luminous rocket-ship, which stood with its nose in the air, looking like some immense, fantastic fish that had come up from the ocean deep, and had become petrified forever on shore. "There's our interplanetary equipage!" — said "Red Light," and rapped with his hook on the rocket-ship's side. An unscanned door silently slid open and from the body of the rocket-ship another Martian emerged, one whose "eyes" shone with a violet light. "Will you accept a passenger?" — asked "Red Light." "Yes!" — "Violet Light" nodded his head. "Have you the tools ready for an operation?" "Yes." And he showed scissors, a hacksaw, a screwdriver and some other instruments. "What-what are you going to do to me?" — stammered Borys. "Red Light" put his cold metallic hook on Borys' shoulder and said: "You see, my friend, in your present human form you cannot travel with us into interplanetary space. You would shrivel up into ashes long before the rocket reached the stratosphere. Therefore it will be necessary to change you right here, on earth, into a Martian. Our friend 'Violet Light' will do this in a flash, quite painlessly. He is an expert at it. He will unscrew your head, and attach the apparatus with the light projectors and part at it. He will unscrew your arms and legs and attach these beautiful shiny hooks...

UNA BENEFITS TO NON-MEMBERS

The Ukrainian National Association pays benefits to the beneficiaries of its deceased members. Many of these beneficiaries themselves are not members of the organization. We mention this because someone inquired recently whether it was required that a person be a UNA member in order to be named as a beneficiary. About 500 UNA members die during the year, and these members may have thousands of beneficiaries. Although many leave the death benefits to their wives or husbands, many others have their children listed as beneficiaries. It is not unusual for a single death benefit to be paid to as many as eight children. Not long ago we searched through the death records of a group of members and found that many of the beneficiaries were not members. There is nothing wrong about this, of course, since it is not required that a beneficiary must be a member; but we couldn't help wondering why so many of our people are not members, so we sent UNA literature to some of them. There was no response at all. One would think that a recipient of a UNA death benefit check would show some interest in an organization his deceased parent helped to build. Our fathers and mothers, who joined the UNA as many as 50 years ago and who supported it and worked for it all that time, are now leaving this world at the rate of several hundred a year. The very least that we, their children, can do is to continue the great work they started, and the best way to do that is to become members ourselves. The fact is that we all need insurance protection. How can any Ukrainian American turn his back on the UNA, an organization founded by his people for their and his protection, and seek protection from companies interested only in the business he can give them? Our young people are doing just that. And what may be worse, they are also insuring their children only in the commercial companies. The UNA sorely needs the business that is slipping away. This organization is striving to be of service to all of the Ukrainian people, but it can't accomplish this worthy aim without the wholehearted cooperation of the people themselves. We must admit we depend a lot on The Ukrainian Weekly to acquaint people with the facts concerning the Ukrainian National Association. We wish to stress the fact that the UNA needs new members to offset losses due to death, cash surrender, suspension, and the like, and the more the better. We urge our readers, particularly those who received benefits as beneficiaries, to think seriously about the UNA. Remember—the UNA is your organization, and it is at your service. Theodore Lutwinski

Immigration and Naturalization

Question: I have a large farm. My main crop is rarely grown in the United States, but is grown in abundance abroad. Despite having advertised, I am having hard time trying to find a suitable manager for my farm. But I do know of someone in the home country who is experienced in this kind of work, and who is willing to come here. Unfortunately, the quota for his country is oversubscribed. Is there any way I can bring him over here? Answer: You should file a petition with the Immigration and Naturalization Service for a first preference quota for this man, on the grounds that his services are urgently needed in the United States. To file this petition, apply or write to an office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which will tell you what procedure to follow. You must also obtain a clearance order from the United States Employment Service stating that no one with the qualifications you need is available in the United States. Meanwhile, the alien whom you wish to employ should register at the U.S. Consulate abroad for a first preference quota visa. If your petition is approved by the Attorney General, the alien in question will probably be able to come here, as first preference visas are available in most cases where non-preference visas are not.

Ukrainians Take Part in the Festival of Nations

Saturday night, April 7, the YWCA in Miami, Florida presented its tenth annual Festival of Nations. Some 22 nations were represented, including Ukraine. The purpose of this annual festival is to promote world fellowship among the nations. The theme this year was "Flags Around the World." It opened with a parade of flags, in which each nationality was represented by their flag. It was a very spectacular thing to see. Each nationality group wore the costumes of the country of its origin, and gave a demonstration of their native singing or dancing. It was very interesting to watch each nationality group perform. The Ukrainians did both dancing and singing. The participants wore the full Ukrainian costumes which evoked many favorable comments from the other people of different nationalities. The dances done were the Hopak Kolom, Kozachok Polisky, Honiviter, Kolomeyka, and Chumak, and a solo done by Taras Hodivsky which received a lot of applause. Taras is only 9 years old and looked very good with his white costume and whip as he did the dance. Taras Maksimovitch and Mrs. Kay Hodivsky receive the credit for the dancing. For months they have worked hard and long, preparing the group for this occasion. Their hard work paid off because the Ukrainians received many compliments. The singing part of the Ukrainian group was done by Olga Pavlova accompanied on the piano by Olga Lachowitch. The soprano sang two songs in Ukrainian. From the comments heard by the audience, it seems that they liked the Ukrainian songs and dances very much. One of the reasons why, is because the Ukrainian dances are fast and lively. There is a lot of pep and bounce to them and the audience enjoyed watching them. All in all, the Festival of Nations was successful for everyone concerned—the audience who watched it and the participants who were in it. Karen Lachowitch

Ethnic Groups

It is to be noted that the Mexican-Americans comprise by far the largest group, followed by the Puerto Ricans. The smallest group is made up of those born in Spain. Thus, the questions raised by the acculturation problems of these groups are usually related specifically to the so-called "problem" of the Mexican-Americans or the Puerto Ricans. The factors involved are similar and to describe one is to describe the other. It must be remembered that these factors are merely particular aspects of the more basic issues involved in the acculturation of an ethnic group whose heritage stems from a set of cultural patterns and socio-economic circumstances quite different from those of our contemporary society. The Puerto Ricans, for example, settled first in New York, but in recent years have spread to Connecticut, New Jersey, upstate New York and the mid-west. In New York City they are particularly active in the needle and paper-box industries as well as in the hotel, restaurant and hospital trades. These people face the usual socio-economic problems of all ethnic groups striving to forge a place in our contemporary society. The continued emphasis upon the negative aspects of this process of acculturation enlarges rather than diminishes the areas of tension, intensifies rather than ameliorates feelings of subservience and inferiority and results inevitably in a tendency on the part of this group to reject its cultural and language heritage. Many communities, however, are beginning to realize that the solution of this "problem," like all problems of ethnic-group interrelationships depends on the elimination of prejudice based on factual appraisal of the causes which foster tensions among all groups. Our teachers of Spanish can do much to hasten this movement. They can eliminate the dichotomy that exists in relation to things Spanish in our culture. They can rectify, for example, the erroneous impression that the Spanish spoken by the Mexican-American is inferior to Castilian. They can emphasize that the task of transmitting Spanish culture was assumed not primarily by Spaniards from Spain, who constitute a relatively small part of this ethnic group, but by the Spanish-speaking inhabitants of the new world. Lastly, through teaching the language, they can develop that respect for other cultures and other tongues which is an indispensable ingredient of the American way of life. (To be continued)

U.N.A. BOWLING LEAGUE NEWS

H.N.S. "A's" PROBABLE CHAMPS IN JERSEY CITY DIVISION By STEPHEN KURLAK The matches held by the Jersey City division of the League on Friday, April 6th, seemed to point to the "A" team of the Sts. Peter and Paul Holy Name Society as the championship division team for the 1956 season. The A's won two out of three of their games from the New York U.N.A. Branch 435 quintet and not only registered the high team game for the night with a pinfall of 908, but made their second highest series of the season with a total of 2,533 pins, the best for the evening. Since the Jersey City Ukes also won only two of their games—from the Blacksheep that night, the A's are still holding on to their five-game lead, which, with only a few weeks of the season left, will be a tough lead to beat. The Ukes turned in a good performance by scoring the second highest series with a pinfall of 2,366, which included the second-highest game of the evening—818 pins. The "B" team of the Holy Name Society won two out of three from the Jersey City Social and Athletic Club, and its George Zidiak, who finished as fourth highest bowler in the recently completed Red Feathered Bowling Tournament, registered the highest three-game series of the evening with a pinfall of 554. Milton Rychalsky scored the highest single game with a total of 213 pins.

UKRAINIAN YOUTH NEWS

at Mountainside, N. J. on April 6, winning a new Plymouth auto, a large trophy and cash awards. Bowling For the past couple of months we have laid heavy stress upon sports, primarily Basketball and Bowling, as the best method of inducing our Ukrainian youngsters to join the UYL-NA fold, and for young "oldtimers" to re-activate and reorganize and once again come into the UYL-NA picture, too. As a follow-up on the recent story of the highly successful New Jersey UYL weekly bowling operation, we urge all UYL-NA state leagues and district councils to take advantage of Ukrainian Centers or businesses that have bowling facilities as we're certain that they'd only be too glad to handle sectional Ukrainian Youth bowling leagues. For example, Mickey Hamalak's two establishments in Long Island City, Queens, N. Y. (where the annual UYL-NA Sports Rally will take place May 18-20, 1956) stand ready to handle a New York City-Long Island Ukrainian Youth bowling league on a regular basis. Off hand other Ukrainian bowling establishments that we know of include Emil Zablocky's in Michigan, the Ukrainian Centers in Auburn (8 alleys), Syracuse (16 alleys) Binghamton (6 alleys) and Rochester, while Ukrainian former hockey great Joe Cooper and Bill Moslenko also run a successful bowling emporium together in the Ukrainian capital in Canada, Winnipeg (they recently ran a highly successful Ukrainian tourney there.) No doubt there are more Ukrainian bowling centers, so patronize these Ukrainian places and help them—and at the same time, help yourselves to organize with fellow Ukrainians in a healthful and pleasant sport—bowling. Writing as a first season "duffer," I think that bowling is great and it certainly beats my other favorite sport (boxing, football, baseball, etc.) by far (the pins don't bit you back). Also as an added service to you, we stand ready to convey all questions and problems on formation of Ukrainian Youth bowling league from any interested readers to our proven New Jersey bowling experts, the Herila and Laszek families. Let's go Ukrainians, it's really worthwhile. Incidentally, Ukrainian George Billick of Old Forge, Pa. (near Scranton) rolled his thirteenth (yes, 13—a figure that probably will never be matched by anyone) perfect 300 game in league competition on Wednesday, April 4. George also won the TV title ational champs, with the following as sectional sports leaders: Canada—Jean Harasym Maynerick (1178A Ossington Toronto, Ont., Canada); West—Terry Szmagala (4037 River-edge Road, Cleveland 11, O.); Central—Bill Ewaniszyk (101 Terrace Drive, Syracuse 9, N. Y.); East—Al Danko (347 Ave. C, Bayonne, N.J.). All Ukrainian teams (remember, all UYL-NA players must be of Ukrainian descent or married to a Ukrainian) interested in participating, please get in touch with the above listed persons in your respective areas. Sports Rally co-ordinator Alex Prochnick (425 Mt. Prospect Avenue, Newark, N. J.) and his committee hope to make this one of the best UYL-NA Sports Rallies yet. Mrs. Jean H. Maynerick wrote us that the Ukrainian Tridents of Toronto who were leading in the 6 team league there will probably represent Canada, in basketball. We'd like to hear from Messrs. Szmagala and Ewaniszyk on how their Western and Central sectional play-offs are shaping up. The Eastern Rally to determine its representative will take place within the next 3 weeks, probably at the Carteret, N. J. High School gym. All interested Ukrainian teams are urged to contact me at the address listed above. For the records, the recent Eastern "trial run" which was quite successful, went as follows: (1) Bayonne—70, Carteret—51; (2) Chester—65, Passaic—58; (3) Elizabeth—64, Wilmington—46; (4) Carteret Jr.—48, Wilmington Jr.—20; (5) Carteret Jr.—63, Chester Jr.—40; (6) Chester—80, Carteret—56. The Ukrainian All American College Basketball Team will soon be published. We'd appreciate hearing from anyone on any known Ukrainian college player for inclusion on this team. Good friend Mike Oleynek of Hazelton, Pa. recently sent us a clipping on basketballer Bob Zawoluk, former all-time great All-American at St. John's University who is one of the top scorers of the E.B.L. Bob once performed for the N. Y. C. St. George Ukrainian basketball team (through the good offices of my late brother Walter) in UYL-NA basketball. Whatever became of the St. George basketball team? Too lazy? Lack of "Brotherhood" feeling? WHY BE ON THE OUTSIDE? JOIN THE UKRAINIAN NATIONAL ASSOCIATION UKRAINIAN WEEKLY!
