The program of the conference will include the reading of special papers on Prof. Manning's contributions to the studies on Ukraine by Prof.

Successful Rally of Ukrainian Democrats in Philadelphia

The Ukrainian Democratic Association of Philadelphia had one of its greatest rallies in its history on Sunday, May 19, 1963 at the Ukrainian League of Nicetown Hall at Clarissa and Rowan Streets. The entire hall was packed and there were even people standing in the rear of the Hall.

The Rally was preceded by a concert by the Ukrainian American String Band of Philadelphia in the Hall, and then the String Band filed out of the Hall to greet Mayor James H. J. Tate upon his arrival at the Rally.

The master of ceremonies was Attorney John Patrick, who after welcoming the people to the Rally, explained the difference in philosophy of the Democratic and Republican Parties.

Charles Henik then introduced the Candidate for City Council from his district, Attorney Isadore Bellis, who stated that he was interested in furthering the progress made in Philadelphia by the two previous Democratic Administrations, and would be able to serve our people if he were elected. Attorney Bellis also gave a check to Mr. Henik in the amount of $100.00 as a donation from the 49th Ward Democratic Club to the Ukrainian Catholic church in Nicetown.

Candidate Bellis was followed to the rostrum by a member of the State Legislature, the Honorable James Powers, who told the audience how hard the Democratic members of the House of Representatives.

Ukrainian Appointed Professor At Wisconsin State College

SUPERIOR, Wisconsin (Special). — Prof. Mark Mensheha has been recently appointed professor of geography at the Wisconsin State College. Another Ukrainian, Dr. Vasyl Halych, author of Ukrainians in the United States, has been a full professor of history for several years at this college. Prof. Mensheha received his B.S. degree from the Kiev Polytechnical Institute, and his M.A. from the Kiev Agricultural Institute, and another M.A. degree from the University of Minnesota.

Prior to World War II, Prof. Mensheha was an associate professor at the Kiev Polytechnical Institute, and for seven years was head of an Agricultural Engineering Department and was engaged in research studies in the sugar industry.

He came to the United States in 1949 and settled in Minneapolis where he was employed by the Moline Tractor Company until his appointment as professor of geography at the Wisconsin State College.

Ukrainian Community of New York To meet with Prof. Kubyovych

New York. — The Committee of the United Ukrainian-American Organizations of New York and The Shevchenko Scientific Society are the co-sponsors of a dinner today at which Ukrainian-Americans from the Metropolitan area will have an opportunity to meet in an atmosphere of cordial informality our foremost Ukrainian scholar in the free world, Prof. Volodymyr Kubyovych, president of the European section of the Shevchenko Scientific Society and editor-in-chief of the Ukrainian Encyclopaedia. The dinner will be held at the Ukrainian National Home in New York City at 7:30 P.M. The main purpose of this affair is to render support to the great endeavors of Prof. Kubyovych in the field of scholarship, particularly the completion of work on the Ukrainian Encyclopaedia under his supervision and editorship. The sponsors are expecting a large turnout at this dinner.

The Faithful in Ukraine Rejoice Over Release of Their Metropolitan

BERLIN. — A West German newspaper Catholisches Sonntagblatt reports that the people of Western Ukraine are rejoicing over the release of their Metropolitan, Most Rev. Joseph Slipy, from the Russian captivity.

According to one letter from Ukraine, the people there are convinced that prayers alone brought about the release of the Ukrainian Primate. The letter states that children cried for joy upon hearing the news of the release, even though they have been deprived of the spiritual father. The people nevertheless implore the Venerable prelate to pray for them no matter where he may be.

Metropolitan Slipy was released from prison January 27, 1963 and the people of Ukraine heard the joyful a few days later, although the release was virtually ignored by Soviet papers.

Ukrainian Doctor Reports On Cancer-Cure Drugs

TORONTO, Ont. — A drug derived from the Periwinkle plant or other drugs similar to it may be effective in the treatment of cancer of the uterine cervix according to new studies from Roswell Park Memorial Institute, New York State's cancer treatment and research facility in Buffalo, New York. Dr. Miroslav M. Hreshchyn, Ukrainian-born Senior Cancer Research Surgeon in the Institute's Gynecology Department and Assistant Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the New York State University Medical School, reported his findings at the Fifty-fourth Annual Meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research in Toronto, May 23-25.

Vincristine is an anti-cancer drug which was reported by Roswell Park clinicians more than a year ago as having some inhibitory effect in the treatment of leukemia. The drug is obtained from the Periwinkle plant.

The treatment of cancer of the uterine cervix, one of the most frequent cancers in women, responds best to radiation or surgery. However, only 50% of the patients are cured by these methods.

Although anti-cancer drugs have shown some success in inhibiting the growth of other types of cancer, uterine cervical cancer has rarely responded to anti-cancer drugs.

After the discovery of Vincristine's anti-cancer activities in other types of cancers, the drug was given to 39 patients whose cancer had recurred after previous treatment and were beyond further surgery or radiation treatment.

Eleven showed definite shrinkage in the size of their tumors. Although the results were not permanent, five of these patients had decided improvement lasting several months.

Prize Trip Off, But Church Gains

Editor's Note: The following story, written by Leonard Ford, appeared in the May 21, 1963 issue of The Jersey Journal, published in Jersey City.

For as long as she could remember, Mrs. Florence Chieffo wanted to go to Paris. In fact, she and her husband, Dr. Henry Chieffo, had saved for just such a trip. They intended to take their daughters.

Then, one day last March she won a trip, not only to Paris, but to London, Belgium and Holland, too. Everyone was delighted and her friends told her how lucky she was.

Today her friends are singing another tune. They're telling her she's crazy.

Instead of the trip, Mrs. Chieffo took the $998 in cash, added another $2 and turned the $1,000 over to the Rev. Anthony Borsa, pastor of St. Peter and Paul Ukrainian Catholic Church, Jersey City. She wanted to help him with the debt on his new $600,000 parish school at Bergen and Bentley Avenues.

Mrs. Chieffo, of 154 Fairview Ave., Rutherford, won the European trip at the Cafe De Paris dinner-dance held by St. Peter and Paul Church in the Ukrainian Center, Jersey City.

She has nothing to do with St. Peter and Paul School, but she does have friends who have children attending the institution. She just went along that night.

"This was fine," said Mrs. Chieffo. "We had never been to Europe. We had been saving four years for a trip there and here we had it handed to us just like that."

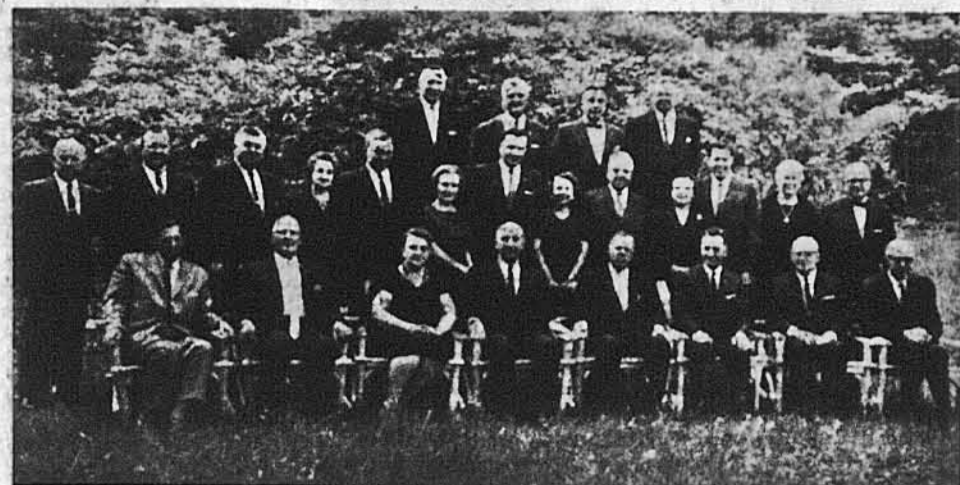

"We talked about it all summer. It takes time to make plans. We thought we might make the trip in September. Meanwhile, I had been hearing all about how hard it was for Father Borsa to build his school."

"Finally I went to the doctor and said 'I am not going on that trip. I am going to give that money back to Father. He needs that money more than I do. We can go to Europe anytime, later.'"

Mrs. Chieffo, a registered nurse and a native of Jersey City, went to the travel agency and told them she had decided to take the money instead of the trip.

San Francisco Ukrainians Mark Anniversary of Man-Made Famine In Ukraine

SAN FRANCISCO, California (Special). — On Saturday, April 27, 1963 Ukrainians in San Francisco marked the 30th anniversary of the man-made famine in Ukraine by sponsoring a rally and a car caravan in downtown San Francisco and Oakland. The commemorative event was sponsored by the San Francisco Branch of the Ukrainian Congress Committee of America.

The famine, created by the Russian Communist rulers, in an attempt to break the resistance of the Ukrainian people to Communism, was described by Prof. Y. Slavutych. Presently a professor at the University of Alberta, in Edmonton, Canada, Prof. Slavutych said that he was a boy of 15 years of age at that time. He and his father were placed under arrest, and it was while they were enroute to a camp that he made his escape. Since that time he has not seen or heard from his father, mother or any of his five sisters.

"When such tactics as threats, arrests and mass deportations to Siberia were not successful in breaking down the Ukrainian farmers' resistance," Dr. Slavutych added, "the Communist rulers arranged a man-made famine in 1933."

Extensive reports on the Ukrainian observances appeared in the issues of The San Francisco Chronicle and The San Francisco Examiner on April 27 and 28, 1963.

SALUTE TO A GREAT FIGHTER

Today at the Ukrainian Institute of America in New York City representatives of Ukrainian American organizations will gather at a special ceremony to honor Professor Clarence A. Manning, outstanding American scholar and educator, and the loyal and dedicated friend of Ukrainians and other captive peoples.

It is entirely proper and fitting to honor this intrepid fighter for his dedication to all enslaved nations and for the legitimate recognition of their literary and cultural heritage in this country.

Professor Manning is one of the few American scholars who opened the eyes of American educators to the fact that the Slavic world is not synonymous with that of the Russian, that the world "Slavic" covers not only the Russian nation, but the Ukrainian, Polish, Byelorussian, Czech, Slovak, Serbian, Croat, Bulgarian and Slovene. In this respect he demonstrated a great courage, wisdom and knowledge.

To date Professor Manning has contributed several dozens of books dealing with the history and literature of the various Slavic nations. His record is impressive and unmatched.

But Professor Manning has especially distinguished himself as an author and specialist on Ukrainian history and literature. He not only lectured on Ukrainian literature at Columbia, but he wrote a series of books on that subject. As a researcher in the field of Ukrainian studies will acknowledge, Professor Manning performed more than yeoman service in presenting to the Anglo-Saxon world the unknown, and unexplored treasures of Ukrainian literature.

Professor Manning's contributions to the English-language literature on Ukrainian history and history is outstanding and impressive. As early as 1929 he translated the preface of Shevchenko's "Haydamaky" which appeared in a volume of Slavonic Literature at Columbia. In 1938 he wrote Ivan Franko, and in 1944 a comprehensive volume on Ukrainian Literature. A year later, in 1945, Professor Manning wrote Taras Shevchenko and translated the best known works of Ukraine's poet laureate. In 1947 he penned The Story of the Ukraine, a comprehensive volume on Ukrainian history, and in 1948 he edited Ivan Franko: The Poet of Western Ukraine. In 1949 appeared his Outline of Ukrainian History, published by the Canadian Ukrainian Committee. In 1950 Professor Manning, edited Spirit of Ukraine: Lays of Ukraine, translated by Percival Cundy. In 1951 his Twentieth Century Ukraine made its appearance, and in 1953 Ukraine under the Soviets, and in 1957, Hetman of Ukraine: Ivan Mazepa. Still unpublished is his translation of Ivan Murchuk's Ukrainian Culture.

Most of these books were subsidized by the Ukrainian National Association. Professor Manning is also one of the Associate Editors of Ukraine: A Concise Encyclopedia, which is now being published by the University of Toronto Press under the sponsorship of the Ukrainian National Association. Prof. Volodymyr Kubiiovych is editor-in-chief of the Ukrainian encyclopedia.

In addition, Professor Manning has over 1,100 articles of various scopes and on subjects dealing with the Ukrainian and general Slavic and Greek fields, including books on Russian, Bulgarian, Serbian, Polish and Czech literatures.

In addition, Professor Manning has been a loyal contributor to The Ukrainian Weekly from the early days of its inception in 1933, and a veteran collaborator of The Ukrainian Quarterly, the publication of the Ukrainian Congress Committee of America founded in 1944. He appeared on many Ukrainian rallies, conventions and conferences. In recognition for his services, he was awarded in 1947 an honorary degree of Doctor of Political Sciences by the Free Ukrainian University in Munich.

With such a record, it is no wonder that Professor Manning was singled out as a target for Moscow's vituperative propaganda and abuse. Every time a new book on Ukraine was published under his name, he was assailed and attacked by the communist press as an "imperialistic dragon, warmonger and perverter of history."

The Ukrainians in the free world and those in enslaved Ukraine will be forever grateful to Professor Manning for his intrepid courage and dedication to the principle of the equality of all Slavic nations, and for his championing of the Ukrainian cause in the American scholastic and literary world.

With the deepest appreciation and gratitude we salute Professor Manning on his 70th birthday anniversary and wish him good health and strength to continue his dedicated work on the road to make Slavic literature and history better known to the American and Anglo-Saxon world in general.

Languages in the News

By CHARLES F. BERLITZ & ROBERT STRUMPEN-DARRIE

Some of our readers have requested a column devoted to Ukrainian, a language spoken by over 42 million people in the USSR and other parts of the world, including well over a million in the United States. Ukrainian is one of the principal Slavic languages, and with the exception of a few letters, is written in the same Cyrillic script as Russian, though the language itself is as different from Russian, approximately, as Italian is from Spanish.

EDITORS NOTE: Our readers are urged to write to Mr. Charles F. Berlitz, "Languages in the News," encouraging him to write more on the Ukrainian language and its importance. Write to: Mr. Charles F. Berlitz, "Language in the News," c/o AP Newsfeatures, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N. Y.

The General Assembly of the United Nations is now holding a special session in an endeavor to find some satisfactory way of solving the financial tangle in which the United Nations Organization is involved and which bids fair to throw into bankruptcy the entire operations of the international institution. Yet this tangle is but the obvious and logical result of the actions of the organization, as it has consistently declined to carry out the full implications of the original Charter.

At the time of the original meeting in San Francisco as the Second World War was ending, there was throughout the United States and its Western Allies a strong wave of Sovietophilia which was shared even by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. To the leading statesmen, it was inconceivable that "dear old Uncle Joe" was not going to interpret the Charter in the same noble and democratic sense that they cherished. To them it seemed that the chief purpose of the organization in the political sphere was to adjudicate differences that might arise between some of the smaller nations after the great task of liquidating the results of the war was accomplished. So unlike the League of Nations it was decided that the United Nations would not be entangled in the difficulties involved in drawing up the treaties of peace. It was hoped and believed that the major powers could easily agree on the necessary course of action and even when the Soviet troops were advancing and setting up communist governments in the formerly independent countries to the west of the Soviet Union, none of the Western Allies paid any special attention or ventured to call Stalin to account. Instead, they bent all their energies to disarming themselves and to ushering in the new era of peace and brotherhood.

When the Secretary General used his power and advised the General Assembly to try to solve the problem of the Middle East by stationing U.N. forces in the Gaza Strip, Moscow refused to pay and in this it was followed not only by the Communist bloc but by many of the other Asian and African states. The situation became still worse when the same remedy was applied to the Congo. As a result, the financial situation of the entire organization is going from bad to worse and when the International Court ruled that payment was obligatory on all states, it made no difference to the Communists.

The United Nations then decided to issue bonds to cover its deficit and the United States at once subscribed to half of the total sum, for it rested its foreign policy on the success of the United Nations, while Moscow pinned its hopes to the use of the organization for propaganda purposes until it was able to impose its will and strike for Communism. At the same time Khrushchev tried and failed to establish a triple secretariat so that the Secretary General would himself be reduced to impotence.

Now Moscow is trying a new tack. It has not only refused to pay its share of the peace-keeping operations of the organization but Khrushchev has gone one step further and announced that from now on, Moscow will pay no part of the annual budget of which it disapproves. In other words, it is aiming now at a financial veto and its efforts will be helped by the underdeveloped nations, many of which can ill afford to spend the necessary funds, if the organization is to be kept solvent and assist them as they would like.

In this crisis, Ceylon has suggested that the entire question be left to the delegates of the United States and the Soviets to work out a solution. The United States rightly rejected this, for the question is really whether the United Nations is a world organization with its own fixed responsibilities and its own powers and obligations or whether it is a mere sounding board for Moscow's shouts. It is sincerely to be hoped that the United States will maintain its position and not allow itself to be tricked or cajoled into adding still another defeat to its record and completing the ruination of the whole organization.

There is a mood of fatalism that everything must be done to keep the United Nations running as a central place of oratory. Yet it must be more than that or less. If it is to be a mere debating society, it is useless. If it is to be as the Charter proposed, a factor in world organization, the organization as a whole must find ways and means to discipline Moscow and force it and all other members to accept their duties and this applies to all countries, not merely the United States. Nature abhors a vacuum and that is what the aimless discussions are tending to produce.

Change of the U. N. With the Security Council definitely paralyzed (and under the strict interpretation of the Charter only this had any real power), high hopes were raised in the West that through the General Assembly the organization could appeal to a hypothetical world conscience to carry out its high ideals. Yet it became painfully evident that such a world conscience did not really exist. At the same time the West shrank from any effort, when it might have been possible, to apply to the Soviet Union any of the restrictions and punishments that were possible under the Charter. As a result the Communist bloc became a law unto itself and used the General Assembly like the Security Council as a weapon and place for propaganda and propaganda only.

Centralization of Soviet Science After a short period of an illusory extension of rights of the separate Soviet republics and a decentralization of certain branches of economy, the USSR is now witnessing a revival of centralization of all political and economic as well as cultural life. The Governments of the non-Russian republics are to become ordinary departments of the Soviet government. The centralization "vogue" has been also encroaching upon science as well. This was evident from recent meetings of academies of sciences in the non-Russian republics and also from the position of the Academy of Sciences of the USSR in this matter.

In his address at the session, Soviet Academy of Sciences president M. Keldish stated that despite impressive progress by science in the USSR, there are many shortcomings and failures to be overcome and amended. He stressed that Nothing like this has ever been done before for as the actors move in their appointed scenes, so the most interesting facets of Los Angeles come into view. We are often asked the question, "What kind of insurance should I get for my children?" Instead of making any specific suggestions or recommendations we carefully explain the different types of insurance protection the Ukrainian National Association has for children; after that it is up to the parent to make the decision. This is as it should be because the parent has a good idea as to what is desired considering existing family circumstances.

It has been observed that many parents look ahead and make preparations for the education of their children in colleges and universities. They take out Endowment At Age 18 certificates for their offspring, secure in the knowledge that this insurance will mature for the full face values at a time when the children are getting started in schools of higher learning. Endowment At Age 18 insurance is available to children 0 to 10 years of age in amount ranging from $500 to $5,000. It is the most expensive of all the juvenile forms of insurance being issued by the UNA, but this is so because of the early maturity dates (a certificate issued at age 10 matures after only 8 years!) Parents who take out such insurance for their children should pay the dues on the annual basis and so realize a savings; of course there is a savings on semi-annual rates, too, but the savings on two such payments is not as large as that resulting from a single annual payment. Dividends are paid after two calendar years, which is true of all certificates issued by the UNA.

The UNA also has 20 Year Endowment insurance. Many parents select this as a future gift for their children. This insurance matures for the full face value in cash after 20 years. If the child was only a baby when the insurance was taken out the proceeds could be used for educational purposes. In quite a few instances, where the 20-year span saw children married and settled down, the money is used on home improvements and the like.

Both the Endowment At Age 18 and 20 Year Endowment juvenile certificates are quite popular with grandparents, too! Many of these certificates have been taken out for children by their grandfathers and grandmothers, usually for educational purposes. There are parents who believe in presenting their children fully paid-up life insurance certificates so that they will not have to worry about protection as long as they live. To meet this need the UNA offers 20 Payment Life certificates with very reasonable rates. Dues are payable only 20 years and after that the child is insured for life for the full face value. The UNA pays dividends even after 20 years. This type of protection, because of the low rates, is ideal for large families. Every certificate has its own table of equities, which is true of all UNA certificates with the exception of the Term to Age 16 explained below, not to be confused with Endowment At Age 18.

Less popular, but with even lower rates, are the Paid-Up At Age 65 and Endowment At Age 65 juvenile contracts. The UNA has these available because there are parents who want long-term certificates with extremely low rates; they want low-cost protection. Even these certificates, however, have tables of equities. The UNA has one juvenile certificate which has no table of equities. This is the Term to Age 16 certificate; it calls for dues of 50¢ monthly and insures the child for $1,000. It is available in an amount up to $5,000 (50¢ monthly per $1,000). It terminates when the child reaches age 16 but, if the child applies for adult insurance at that time, the UNA will allow a credit for the juvenile certificate said credit to be applied toward the payment of monthly dues on the new adult insurance.

Ask for the UNA Facts booklet and learn more about the UNA and the certificates that are available. Write to Box 76, Jersey City 3, N. J. Please mention our column.

Ukrainian Students Tour Capitol With Senate Chaplain

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Greeting warmly some 10 representatives of the Federation of Ukrainian Student Organizations of America SUSTA in his office on Capitol Hill, the Chaplain to the United States Senate, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris welcomed and expressed his interest in the work of young college students for such noble ideals and determination as the Ukrainian students espouse. The purpose of the visitation with the Senate Chaplain, a staunch defender of the independence for Ukraine and Soviet-enslaved nations, was to express officially and personally the gratitude and appreciation of the United States Ukrainian Student Community to Dr. Frederick Brown Harris for his recent stimulating article "Ukraine and You." The article appeared in the Washington Star of January 27 in an annual observance of Ukrainian Independence Day. This syndicated article was frantically attacked by a long-time leader of the Russia-firster group, but ably rebutted by the national chairman of the Ukrainian Congress Committee of America, Dr. Lev E. Ted Shumeyko Arranges TV Tour For Elizabeth Taylor in London

Editor's Note: The following column appeared in the April 19, 1963 issue of The Evening Bulletin in Philadelphia:

ELIZABETH TAYLOR will make her TV debut next fall as the guide of an hour-long tour of London. The colorcast will be similar in format to the tour of Monaco conducted by Princess Grace.

Ted V. Shumeyko, director of public relations for Chemstrand, Inc., which co-sponsored the Monaco program, said his firm also will sponsor Miss Taylor's show...

Norman Baer and Phil D'Antoni, two former radio network employees who formed a TV production company recently will produce the program. Filming will start next month.

In London, Baer said, "We just called up Miss Taylor and asked her to appear. She liked the idea. She said nobody had asked her before."

Shumeyko said he could not confirm Baer's assertion that Miss Taylor would get the highest fee ever paid a single performer for a TV show.

The deal, he said, was arranged by the company's advertising agency, Doyle, Dane and Bernbach of New York. The program probably will be aired sometime in October, on whichever network offers the most attractive terms.

SUSTA Convocation Hears Prof. Dobriansky Rap Student Apathy in UCCA Work

Ukrainian Students at State Department — At the invitation of the Department of State, national officers of the Federation of Ukrainian Student organization of America SUSTA were invited to attend a foreign policy briefing session in the East Auditorium of the State Department, Friday morning, April 19, 1963.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Addressing more than 45 students and guests, the national chairman of the Ukrainian Congress Committee of America, Dr. Lev E. Dobriansky of Georgetown University rapped Ukrainian students for their lack of interest and lack of participation in the work and activities of the UCCA and its various chapters throughout the towns and cities of the United States.

Fourth, it is urged that Ukrainian students do more letter-writing to their Congressmen and Senators in support of the establishment of a House Committee on Captive Nations; letter-writing is needed in other sectors such as letters to your editors of campus and city newspapers regarding the captive nations commemorations, etc. It is vitally important that student collect signatures of their fellow American students, friends and associates for transmittal with letters to members of the House Rules Committee regarding the establishment of the House Committee on Captive Nations.

First, it is important that collegians should read books on Ukraine and on the imperialism-communism of Moscow. Once a student reads such books, he should review them for his campus newspaper, his city newspaper, and for professional journals. Such reviews should emphasize the aspirations of the Ukrainian and other enslaved peoples for independence from Moscow.

Fifth, Prof. Dobriansky discouraged partisan and party-oriented activities with that statement that "Ukrainians must put their cause of freedom of Ukraine on the highest plane within the context of the United States and the world complexus. Intra-factionalism detracts from the main purposes and energies of the political efforts of the Ukrainians in the United States.

Second, it is urged that Ukrainian student hromadas attend meetings of the local UCCA field branches and that at such meetings the Ukrainian students give their intellectual and methodological know-how as well as technical assistance and leadership to the officers and members of the local UCCA branch in their undertakings, inspired by the directives of the UCCA chairman and the executive board.

The convocation at which Dr. Dobriansky was the guest speaker, was held in the Philodemic Room of the Healy Bldg. at Georgetown University. The Ukrainian Student Hromada, led by its president Valentine Zabijaka and vice president Andrew Bihun, played host to the convocation of the following year. For each occasion, it is requested that the Ukrainian students participate both in terms of massive numbers and in terms of technical staff.

Ukrainian students, which came to hear the remarks of the UCCA chairman. In the question and answer period, Catholic University freshman John Markowsky, Georgetown foreign service major Andrew Bihun, and Volodymyr Mayewsky participated in the discussion lead by Valentine Zabijaka of George Washington University. Prominent guests for the evening were: Ludmila Ivchenko and Dmytro Korbutiak of the Ukrainian Service of the "Voice of America."

Nats Win Eastern Final

Philadelphia — Winning big soccer games has become a habit with the Philadelphia Ukrainian Nationals. They turned the trick again last Sunday, defeating the German-American Soccer League finalist, Juliana S.C., 5-0, and reached the U.S. final in a two-game total goal series. Two weeks ago they were beaten by Giuliana, 1-0, giving them a 5-1 goal aggregate.

If the Philadelphians win the cup they will also qualify to play in the North and Central America and Caribbean Soccer Federation Tournament in defeating the German-American Soccer League finalist, Juliana S.C., 5-0, and reached the U.S. final in a two-game total goal series. Two weeks ago they were beaten by Giuliana, 1-0, giving them a 5-1 goal aggregate.

More than 3,000 fans, nearly all Nats supporters, turned out this day under cloudy skies to root for their team. The first ten minutes were marked by close passing with no clear-cut superiority on either side. Then the lightning struck. Mike Noha, one of the three top scorers on the Philadelphia side, received a pass from Ismael Ferreira and promptly put it into the net to tie the series at 1-1. This goal took some of the wind out of the Italian club but they were completely subdued when two more tallies were registered by the Nats forwards before the first half ended.

USC Beats Hota, 2-1 New York Ukrainian Sport Club gained an important victory last Saturday, defeating Hota, S.C. of the German-American Soccer League in the league race for the championship. The winning goal for the Ukrainians was scored by Terry Mulvoy on a penalty kick. The USC eleven played the game without their highly-priced imported stars from Canada who have returned to their parent teams.

Larry Oliver, the outside left, figured in two of the goals. The Britisher's pass enabled Walter Czyszowych to score the first of his two goals in the game and then Oliver kicked in a goal himself to end the scoring in the initial period.

USC, following a policy of using young players who have come through the junior ranks, is reaping good results as the youngsters are being readied to take over top spots in the first division team on a permanent basis.

In the second half, which was televised in the Philadelphia area, the Ukrainians scored two more times. Ismael Ferreira got on the band wagon and then Czyszowych got his second tally to close the scoring.

Canada The Ukrainian teams in Canada are now in full swing in their league competitions. The Montreal-Ukraina playing in the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League is currently at the bottom of the league standings with two ties and two losses. The Toronto-Ukraina of the National League is in second place, one point behind Hakoah, with two victories and two ties.

Championship Next?

The Nats will make their third bid for the US Championship this Sunday when they meet the Los Angeles Armenians in the first of a two-game total-goals series. The second game will be played in LA.

Wolverhampton Beats Schalke The Wolverhampton Wanderers of England put on an impressive debut last Sunday, defeating Schalke F.C. of Germany, 4-2, before 8,000 at Randalls Island in New York. "Wolverhampton" opened a total-goals series. The second game was part of the United States and Canada.
